Please explain the requested change(s) and offer rationale below or on an attachment

The faculty are requesting to remove the GRE admissions requirement for the master's degree programs in EDLRM. This is consistent with the national trend. Research shows that the GRE is not predictive of student success in these program areas. All applicants must submit a transcript, an essay, resume, and letters of reference. Each application is reviewed by faculty and approved by the department chair. The higher education leadership program uses a rubric to assess candidates. The scale reflects this requested change. No points are given for a GPA below 3.0. Please see attachment. The school leaders program will increase the number of references and require three letters of recommendation. After an initial screening, applicants to the school leaders program will be required to participate in an interview with faculty. If the change is approved, this would necessitate a catalogue change in the requirement for graduate admissions to the three master's degree programs in the department. Please see attachment. Proposed catalogue changes to delete have a strike through and additions are highlighted in yellow, per attachment.

Subject: FW: Program Changes for College/University Review

Paul,

The attached request for removing the GRE admission requirement for the master's degree programs in the College of Education is being forwarded for COE Graduate Program Review. A notice was sent to the chairs of the different departments in the COE to review this request for potential conflict in their department. This request was sent via email on September 4th. To date the department has received notices of "no conflict" from all departments except from the Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders (no response). If necessary, I will forward these communications to you.

As noted earlier the faculty are requesting to remove the GRE admissions requirement for the master's degree programs in EDLRM. This is consistent with a national trend. Research shows that the GRE is not predictive of student success in these program areas. All applicants must submit a transcript, an essay, resume, and letters of reference. Each application is reviewed by faculty and approved by the department chair.

The higher education leadership program uses a rubric to assess candidates. The scale reflects this requested change. No points are given for a GPA below 3.0.

The school leaders program will increase the number of references and require three letters of recommendation. After an initial screening, applicants to the school leaders program will be required to participate in an interview with faculty.

If the change is approved, this would necessitate a catalogue change in the requirement for graduate admissions to the three master's degree programs in the department.

Thank you for your review of this request. Please inform me of when this will be included as an agenda item so appropriate faculty from the department will be able to attend. Bob
