Getting Ready for Spring 2022

SLS 1301
Career & Life Planning

SLS 1301 is a 1-credit course instructed by a Career Counselor each fall and spring semester for students who have not yet declared a major or are still exploring their options. The course focuses on self-assessment, choosing a major, exploring career options and developing an action plan to help achieve career goals. The intended audience for the class is first- and second-year students. We recommend signing up for this course!

Don't know what classes to take next semester? Have a UAS Advising Hold you need removed? Make sure to schedule an appointment with an advisor! You can do so by logging into Success Network.

Student Spotlight!

Justin G.

What major did you decide on? Why did you choose this major?

- Management Information Systems. I chose to major in Management Information Systems because I was looking for a major that would offer me a challenge and would place me in an industry that has numerous employment opportunities.

What assistance or resources helped you decide your major?

- Before changing my major, I consulted with my Academic Advisor!

What advice do you have for other students deciding on a major?

- My biggest advice for those deciding to change their major is to do their research on the new major they are thinking about changing to. This research should include required classes and electives that you may have to take. Secondly, take the time to think about how this major or skill sets that you will learn in this major will benefit you in the future. Lastly, schedule an appointment with your academic advisor or the career center so they can put you in contact with students that are already majoring in this particular field of study.
